

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

The first house built on the Mandalay

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

The Loper family - Courtesy of Tootie Christian

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

The big house on the Mandalay built around 1927

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking

Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

The layout of the Mandalay Ranch

Courtesy of Noreen and Jim Rustad

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

The Davidson barn

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

Charlie Davidson and his father, Bart Davidson with the double-bitted axe, sitting together on a moose they had killed

Courtesy of Charlie and Anne Davidson

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

Margaret Davidson and her mother, Inez Davidson

Courtesy of Charlie and Anne Davidson

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

Walls of Jack Hamilton's house

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

The huge rock in Happy Hollow where the children played

From Broadaxe to Clay Chinking
Chapter 5: The Mandalay and Stuart River Country

Apple trees blooming in Happy Hollow